Bringing the World of Chamber Music to the Pioneer Valley
JUNE 2017 NEWSLETTER

The 2017-18 Season, from October to May

John Montanari, Artistic Director

Where does great chamber music come from? In Valley Classical Concerts' 2017-18 season, it comes from Mount Monadnock, the Pioneer Valley, the high Andes, Italy's "City of Violins," and, of course, New York, St. Petersburg, Prague and Vienna. Best of all, it's accessible and affordable, presented in the comfort and acoustic splendor of Sweeney Concert Hall, and shared by like-minded friends, neighbors and fellow music lovers. Here's what's in store.

To find the group that opens our season on Saturday, October 21 (8 pm), we had only to look as far as southern New Hampshire and the acclaimed chamber music center from which the Apple Hill String Quartet takes its name. They bring with them Haydn, selections by Pelham, MA composer Geoffrey Hudson, and a quartet by Peruvian composer Celso Garrido-Lecca, whose music the quartet encountered while touring Peru under Apple Hill's "Playing for Peace" outreach program.

Also known for their avid outreach and adventurous programming, the Ying Quartet returns to the series after far too long an absence on Sunday, November 5 (3 pm). They'll have with them a very special guest: renowned pianist and composer Billy Childs, whose new quintet

"The River, the Bird, and the Storm" will highlight the program, along with quartets by Mozart (K. 421) and Dvořák (Op. 61).

Making their third VCC appearance on Saturday, December 9 (8 pm) is one of our favorite threesomes, the Latitude 41 Trio. And what a program: Haydn's "Gypsy" Trio, Shostakovich's precocious Trio No. 1, and that virtual Russian novel of a chamber work, Tchaikovsky's epic Trio in A Minor.

What would Super Bowl Sunday be without a great chamber concert to warm you up? This year, on Sunday, February 4 (3 pm), we present one of the great names in American music, the Manhattan String Quartet, still at the top of their game in their 47th season, with quartets by Haydn, Witold Lutoslawski, and Ravel.

October 2017-May 2018 Season (Cont'd)

Since their scintillating VCC debut a few seasons ago, we've been awaiting the day when we could welcome the charming Quartetto di Cremona back to our stage. That day comes on Saturday, March 31 (8 pm), when they serve up a four-course Italian program of Boccherini, Verdi, Puccini, and, rarest of all, the Quartet in D Major of Ottorino Respighi.

Quartetto di Cremona

We've saved one of the best for last, on Sunday, May 6 (3 pm). That's when the acclaimed young Attacca Quartet makes their VCC debut with one of the greatest of all quartets, Beethoven's sublime Quartet in A Minor, Op. 132. It will be preceded by Mendelssohn (Op. 12), and music by Pulitzer Prize-winner Caroline Shaw, who was in residence at Smith College during the Spring 2017 semester.

We Continue to Need Your Support!

Each year, Valley Classical Concerts brings six world-class chamber groups to the Pioneer Valley, enabling our community to experience some of the world's finest musicians playing beautiful and timeless music. If you are reading this, you probably understand and appreciate how much VCC enriches the local music scene. Like many of today's performing arts organizations, however, our ticket sales provide less than half the revenue needed to cover the program's costs. VCC's Board of Directors is working diligently to control those costs, and to keep ticket prices at an affordable level.

The upshot: we need the continued financial support of all who cherish the music that we bring to the Valley! If you are a regular or past supporter, you have our heartfelt gratitude. If you have not supported us in the past, please consider adding VCC to the list of organizations you regularly assist. Your contributions play an essential role in our ongoing ability to bring you some of the finest chamber music in the world — this year, next year, and into the future.

We deeply appreciate your membership in the Valley Classical Concerts support community!
